

CLAUDE SKILLS, SUBAGENTS & AUTOMATION — HOMEWORK

A skill that writes the first message.

I built /prospect-brief: give it the name of a local business, and it reads the report my own Instagram analyzer already made on them, checks it against the web, spots one real problem, and writes a first message that doesn't sound like a salesperson — then saves it to Google Drive.

"Build a real Claude Skill for one task, and connect it to a real tool. Pick one task you would genuinely do more than once. Narrow beats impressive."

— THE DAY 4 ASSIGNMENT

IN ONE PICTURE

WHY I BUILT THIS ONE

I run a small marketing agency in Formosa, Argentina. Getting new clients is our hardest part. Every new client starts the same way: I look at a business, find something they could do better, and send a first message.

I already had two tools for the first half. ALM Lead Hunter finds local businesses, and ALM Social Analyzer reads their Instagram through the official Meta API and saves a report. What was missing was the step in between: turning a report into a message I would actually send. That's the step I skip when I'm busy — so I turned it into a skill.

What the skill does, step by step

1 Check the niche

It only works on the kinds of business my agency actually wants (clinics, gyms, hardware stores). If it's a restaurant, it stops and says why — those clients never stayed with us.

2 Read my analyzer's report

It opens the newest report my Social Analyzer saved for that account: bio, contact links, how often they post. If the report is older than 60 days, it marks it STALE and dates every number instead of passing old data off as today's. No report? It stops and tells me to run the analyzer. It never guesses.

3 Check the web

Their own website and directory listings, to confirm the report and fill the gaps. Every fact gets a source. If the web and the report disagree, it keeps both.

4 Find one problem

Just one — the thing costing them customers, said in their words. "Low engagement" doesn't count. "People can't find how to book" does.

5 Write two messages, then check them against 10 rules

A short Instagram message and a WhatsApp message. Neither tries to sell. Rules like "don't sound like a salesperson" and "never mention prices." A message that breaks a rule is rewritten before I see it.

6 Save to Drive

The brief goes into a folder called ALM/Prospectos. That's the "real tool" the assignment asked for.

One important limit: the skill never sends anything. It writes the message and hands it to me. I read it and send it myself. That keeps a human in charge of anything a customer will see.

What's inside the skill

A skill is a set of instructions Claude follows every time. Mine has four parts.

1 • WHEN IT SHOULD RUN

Runs when I say

- "/prospect-brief @odont_formosa"
- "prep me to contact this business"
- "write the first message for them"

Stays quiet when

- I'm searching for many leads at once
- I want a proposal or a price
- the business is already a client

2 • WHAT IT'S ALLOWED TO TOUCH

Three things: my analyzer's reports on my PC (read only — and never the files that hold my API keys), web search for public pages, and one Google Drive folder to save the brief. It can't log into any account or read anything private. Small on purpose.

3 • THE 10 RULES FOR THE MESSAGE

I copied them straight from my Lead Hunter tool, so everything writes in one voice. My analyzer also writes sales messages, but they name my agency and talk about "reach" — so the skill is forbidden to copy them. It takes the data, not the words.

- Don't sound like a salesperson.
- Never mention prices or discounts.
- Never name the agency.

- Never invent facts.
- Talk about their customers, not "engagement."
- Sound like a real person wrote it.

4 • WHAT "DONE WELL" MEANS

Every fact has a source. Anything it couldn't find is listed openly, never guessed. Old data is labeled old. The message is counted against the length limit and the 10 rules, not just eyeballed. And it picks one problem, not a list.

I RAN IT TWICE ON REAL BUSINESSES

Test 1 — a dental clinic

REAL LEAD FROM MY DATABASE

ANALYZER REPORT · 27 APR 2026 · STALE

SAVED TO DRIVE

WHAT IT FOUND

Open Monday to Friday until 22:00, and Saturday mornings

ANALYZER · BIO

Patients book straight through WhatsApp, from a link in the bio

ANALYZER · BIO

WhatsApp number starts with +54 370 — Formosa, Argentina, not Formosa in Brazil

ANALYZER

In April the profile had gone 65 days without a post

ANALYZER · APRIL

The problem, in plain terms: they have the most convenient hours in town for people who work all day — but a profile that goes quiet for two months makes a new patient wonder if they're still open. The report is from April, so the skill wrote the message around the opening hours, a fact that doesn't expire quickly, and told me to check the profile before sending.

THE MESSAGE IT WROTE (INSTAGRAM · 234 CHARACTERS)

Che, vi que atienden hasta las 22 y también los sábados a la mañana, justo lo que necesita alguien que trabaja todo el día. ¿Los pacientes nuevos que les llegan hoy los encuentran por Instagram o siguen viniendo más por recomendación?

In English: "Saw you're open until 10 pm and Saturday mornings — exactly what someone who works all day needs. Do your new patients find you on Instagram, or do they still come mostly by word of mouth?"

No pitch. No price. One real observation and one question. If they answer, the next step is to offer a free 20-minute check.

Test 2 — an eye clinic

ANALYZER REPORT · 4 MAY 2026 · STALE

CHECKED AGAINST THEIR WEBSITE

SAVED TO DRIVE

Here the problem only appeared by putting two sources side by side:

My analyzer said

- Instagram bio has only an email and a website link
- No WhatsApp, no "book here"

Their website said

- Two WhatsApp numbers, one per location
- Clear opening hours

The problem: the WhatsApp exists — it's just one click too far. Someone who finds them on Instagram has to go to the website to learn how to book, and every extra step loses new patients.

THE MESSAGE IT WROTE (INSTAGRAM · 247 CHARACTERS)

Che, vi que el centro atiende en Yrigoyen y también en Las Lomitas, y que en la web tienen un WhatsApp para cada lugar. Una duda: la gente que los encuentra por Instagram, ¿les escribe directo o primero tiene que pasar por la web para pedir turno?

In English: "Saw you have locations on Yrigoyen and in Las Lomitas, with a WhatsApp for each on your website. Quick question: do people who find you on Instagram message you directly, or do they have to go through the website to book?"

WHERE THE HOMEWORK STANDS

The skill, written and complete	DONE
Run twice on real businesses, from real analyzer reports	DONE
Connected to a real tool (Google Drive)	DONE
Uploaded to Claude and tested with the slash command	DONE
Short Loom video walkthrough	DONE

WATCH THE WALKTHROUGH

<https://www.loom.com/share/e8ec600c3dbd41e596c5f04d5b614189>

Built with Loom · opens in a new tab